Our next generation network is at the heart of our business. The network utilises a rich mixture of fibre optic and wireless connections. This enables us to provide a broad range of services within a combined central network which ultimately provides a quality service at a far lower cost to our clients. Since the acquisition by aql in 2015, the UK based team has lent significant resource to Bluewave to build more resilience, structure and product support, readying the company to reposition as a business communications operator, with a full operator portfolio across wholesale, developer resources and also voice services.
